Why Term Insurance?

For millions of Americans just like you, term life insurance often serves as an ideal solution for their family or business protection needs.

Term insurance provides affordable, guaranteed death benefit coverage for as long as you need it.¹ For some, that means helping to protect their families from a mortgage burden in the event of a premature death. For others, it means providing key person coverage to help ensure continuity for their businesses. And, if your needs should change, the conversion feature allows you to exchange your term policy for a permanent life product — without providing evidence of insurability. (Consult your policy for the terms and limitations of this conversion privilege.)

If you're thinking of term life insurance, AIG Select-a-Term may be just the right policy for your needs.

Life doesn't always fit into neat little boxes of five-year increments that are the standard for most term insurance policies.

AIG Select-a-Term from American General Life Insurance Company offers a powerful new way to customize your life insurance plans to anticipate known future events such as retirement, paying off your mortgage or funding your child's college education.

By selecting only the term coverage needed — 10-, 12-, or 15- through 30-year term periods — you avoid paying extra, unnecessary costs. You can further customize your coverage by selecting from one of the numerous available riders including: Accidental Death Benefit; Child Rider; Disability Income Rider; Terminal Illness Rider and Waiver of Premium.

AIG Select-a-Term offers reliable insurance coverage backed by the financial stability and strength of American General Life, one of the most trusted names in the life insurance industry. And — like all of American General Life's term policies — an AIG Select-a-Term policy can be converted to a permanent life insurance plan during the conversion period without evidence of insurability.

AIG Select-a-Term Policy Features:

- A choice of 10-, 12-, or 15- through 30-year terms of life insurance coverage
- Full convertibility to a permanent life insurance policy of the company's choosing, up to the end of the level-premium period or age 75 of the insured, whichever comes first
- A terminal illness endorsement² providing the option to accelerate the lesser of $250,000 or 50 percent of your policy death benefit, if insured is diagnosed by a qualified physician as having 12 months or fewer to live

Available Optional Riders:³

- Accidental Death Benefit: Pays a death benefit in addition to the death benefit of the base policy if such death resulted from certain accidental injuries
- Waiver of Premium: Automatically pays policy premiums in the event of the insured's total disability (not available if the face amount of the policy exceeds $5 million)
- Child Rider: Available for issue for children 15 days or older but less than 19 years old
- Disability Income Rider: Pays a monthly benefit up to two years if you are unable to work because of an illness or injury. While you are receiving benefits under this rider all policy and rider premiums are waived.

Select-a-Term Scenarios

Protecting their Home

John, 38, and Elizabeth, 34, both work outside the home to provide the best way of life for their family. They live in an affluent, family-friendly neighborhood — minutes from good schools and the grandparents. They have 23 years remaining on a $500,000 mortgage loan.

The Problem

These working parents would like to raise their family in their current home, even in the event of a premature death. To help protect their investment, John and Elizabeth each need 23 years of life insurance coverage, but don't want the increased cost of a 30-year policy.

The Solution

With AIG Select-a-Term, John (Standard Plus) and Elizabeth (Preferred Nontobacco) can each purchase a $500,000 face amount policy for 23 years. Their annual premium would be $780 and $395, respectively — a combined savings of $250 per year for the couple when compared to the cost of a 30-year plan.⁴

Single Working Mother

As the sole income provider for her family of two, Melissa, 29, wants to make sure that her children, ages 1 and 5, will still be able to attend college in the event of her premature death. At her current savings rate, Melissa expects to fully fund both children's college educations within 17 years.

The Problem

Because her children's college educations will be fully funded within 17 years, Melissa only needs 17 years of life insurance coverage.

The Solution

AIG Select-a-Term offers incremental term periods between 15 and 30 years, so Melissa can purchase a 17-year term policy and only pay for the coverage she needs. As a 29-year old female in the Preferred Plus underwriting class, Melissa can purchase a $400,000 policy guaranteed for 17 years for only $15.93 a month.⁴

Coverage for the Working Years

Paul, 41, is an up-and-coming manager earning a solid living for his family of five. He and his wife Joan, a full-time homemaker, are working hard to plan for Paul's retirement at 67, the age that he will be eligible to receive full retirement benefits from Social Security. Of course, everything hinges on Paul's income for the next 26 years.

The Problem

To help protect Paul's income, the family needs term life insurance coverage for the next 26 years. Unfortunately most insurance companies only offer a 20- or 30-year plan. This means that Paul would either be unprotected for six years or pay a premium for an extra four years of coverage he doesn't need.

The Solution

With AIG Select-a-Term, Paul has the flexibility to purchase a term policy that meets his 26-year retirement horizon precisely. As a 41-year old male in the Preferred Plus underwriting class, Paul can purchase a 26-year policy at a face value amount of $1 million for an annual premium of only $1,330.⁴

Coverage beyond the Working Years

Ross spent the last 40 years of his career building a successful manufacturing business. Now, at the age of 62, he is ready to retire and recently sold the business to investors. As part of the sales agreement, Ross will continue to receive a monthly income from the business for the next 25 years. Ross and his wife Paula are counting on this income to help fund their retirement lifestyle.

The Problem

To help protect this monthly income for his wife Paula, Ross needs term insurance coverage well into his 80s. Due to his age, Ross is having difficulty securing term life insurance beyond age 80.

The Solution

With AIG Select-a-Term, Ross (Preferred Nontobacco) can get $1.5 million of coverage that will last 25 years until he's 87, for an annual premium of $18,455.⁴
